Significant Conversation: Kim Humiston began the meeting and turned the meeting over to Joe Starling. Joe Starling went over the Ad hoc's voting record to explain all significant changes that were discussed throughout the three Ad hoc meetings and the final result. Mark Griffin asked if steel wire located in concrete could serve as the required perimeter equipotential bonding means around a swimming pool; Joe Starling said such embedded wire was allowed under the NEC and proposed amendment.

Meeting ended at 2:21 pm
